Greene County Chapter
O.G.S.

The entire Kentucky area was claimed by Virginia as a part of Augusta County of 1584. Harrodsburg, in 1774, was the first permanent settlement in Kentucky. Before Daniel Boone founded Boonesboro in 1775, Kentucky was a part of Fincastle County, Virginia. In December 1776, during Boone's exploration, the section was designated as Kentucky County, Virginia, and in 1780, it was divided into three counties: Fayette, Jefferson, and Lincoln. In 1790, these three counties were subdivided into: Mason, Bourbon, Woodford, Fayette, Madison, Jefferson, Mercer, Nelson, and Lincoln. On 1 June 1792, Kentucky became the fifteenth state admitted to the union.

Courageous men and women settled a country full of danger from Indian attacks and the excitement of the new frontier. They were originally of German, English, and Scottish descent, coming from Maryland, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, and Virginia. The settling of Kentucky included some of the most hazardous and bloody events of American history during the mid-seventeen-hundreds and early eighteen-hundreds.

The information in this book is from the handwritten Marriage Index of Marriage Register #1W - 1793-1831, Clark County, Kentucky. It has been retyped without being checked against the marriage bonds. The information was checked by three researchers for legibility of the writing and accuracy. We are all familiar with the difficulty in reading another person's writing.
